

HON. WM. C. MAYBURY, MAYOR OF DETROIT.

Says He is in Much Better Physical Condition Since Using Paine's Celery Compound.

"Detroit, Mich., Jan. 22, 1901.

"Some time ago, attracted by the very high testimonials published as to the efficacy of Paine's celery compound, I took it on trial for an impaired digestion and consequent nervousness. I found very great benefit from its use, and therefore desire to bear this testimony to any who may be influenced to try this remedy by an experience with it.

William C. Maybury.

William C. Maybury is now serving his third term as Mayor of Detroit, Mich.

In 1882 he was elected to congress from Michigan, re-elected in 1884, serving during the 48th congress on the Judiciary committee, and in the 49th on the ways and means committee. His leisure is devoted to the affairs of St. Peter's Episcopal church, to attentions to the aged, the sick and the poor.

In the light of many such public endorsements as the above from Mayor Maybury, it is easy to see why Paine's celery compound is displacing all other remedies.

It has been truthfully said that the men and women who use and recommend Paine's celery compound are not the class of people who take doubtful remedies and patent medicines. Paine's celery compound is not a patent medicine: it is not a secret preparation. It is the formula of Edward E. Phelps, M. D., L.L.D., professor of materia medica in the Dartmouth Medical School.

It is the only great natural remedy for blood and nerves ever frankly endorsed by the medical profession. Men of ample means, whose command the best medical services; the ablest and the most influential persons in the country, as well as the most progressive physicians, were the first to perceive the extraordinary worth of Paine's celery compound and to use it. That this remedy has succeeded from the start is not astonishing. Thousands owe to it restored vitality, sound sleep, better digestion, freedom from pain, stronger nerves and purer blood.

The wealthiest family in the land can secure nothing better, if they are looking for a spring remedy. It is easily within reach of the humblest household, as thousands of grateful letters testify.

The use of this marvelous remedy, now spring is here, makes all the difference between impure, sluggish blood and tired nerves and a healthy, energetic condition—between sickness and health. The incalculable amount of good it is doing these spring days in making sick and even despairing people well should compel the attention of every judicious person who is out of health in this spring of 1901.

It drives the poison germs of deep-seated disease from the blood. It procures sleep, so necessary to brain and nerves. It brings buoyancy of spirit in place of lassitude and despondency, and allows the overtaxed system to start fairly on the road to health.

Thousands have been benefited; thousands have been cured by Paine's celery compound when everything else failed.

and well ventilated auditorium. The Sabbath school room, pastor's study and kitchen are separate, with outside entrance. Provision is allowed for a pipe organ to be built at the rear of the pulpit, with the choir and the organist's key board to the right. The pews are planned for the circular arrangement, so that each seat directly faces the pulpit, and the vestibule and entrance doors are broad, being easily reached from the street level. The materials of construction as provided are pressed brick facing and natural wood interior finishings. The pulpit is after the pattern of the Scotch Presbyterian church, with high platform, large reading desk and triple pulpit seat.

Upon the adoption of the final plans by the congregation and friends of the church, the funds for its erection without delay, will be solicited.

The Ladies' Aid society has pledged a definite sum, more than half of which is in the treasury. The method of free will subscriptions from the people desiring to aid in the securing of the house of worship will be the principal resort of the trustees. With generous assistance promised by Presbyterian friends in New York, it is believed that the undertaking will be immediately secured.

The trustees report that within a few weeks they expect to begin the preparing of the ground.

At a congregational meeting which has been called for Thursday evening, March 28, the matter will reach a final decision. One additional trustee is to be elected at that time to take the place of Mr. A. J. McDermott, who has removed from Bisbee.

TEN CENTS HIS TIP.

Millionaires Frisk and Schwab have patched up all their differences, and each morning for the past week they have had breakfast together at the Holland house. They were together for that meal Tuesday. A gentleman who sat at the next table saw them examining papers and discussing affairs involving hundreds of millions. Their waiter was absent when the steel kings started out.

This gentleman saw Mr. Schwab reach into his vest pocket and leave two coins on the cloth for the waiter. Interested to know the size of the tip two men worth 100 million dollars would give to a waiter, he looked at the coins after they had gone out. Mr. Schwab had left two nickels behind him. The waiter rasped as he picked up the tip.—N. Y. Journal.

THE BOSTON BOAT

The Independence Will be Launched Early in April.

Mr. Lawley, who is building the Independence at the Atlantic works, has astonished the public by stating that the yacht will be launched in the first week of April, and barring accidents may be sailing in the third week of April. The sixty men now at work on her are riveting in place five plates a day and more men will be put at work as the yacht building progresses and allows them room to work. There will be eighty-four tons of lead stored away in her fin keel. The packing of the pieces in the fin was unsatisfactorily done and they were taken out and replaced. The erections will be fitted with small shot and molten lead will be poured upon and over them, which will virtually compact and make solid the whole mass. A cap of molten lead will make the metal fin complete.

The hollow wooden sticks of a mast will tower up over one hundred feet above the deck, being in all 112 feet 9 inches. It will be 6 feet 10½ inches below deck. No one but the designer and a few workmen know the length of the top mast, but it is known that the Independence will carry the greatest area of canvas ever spread on a single stick.

The balance rudder has been cast at East Braintree, weighing between 3,000 and 4,000 pounds. The aluminum plates are doubtless now being riveted to the deck beams, and we shall soon learn if they can be successfully fitted by the Yankee builders, who will be doing what the builders of Lipton's boat are reported as failing to do, and to have substituted nickel plate for the aluminum deck.

HOBSON AT HOME

Was Honored By His Townsmen at Greensboro.

Greensboro, Ala., March 19.—Captain Richmond P. Hobson, who displayed conspicuous gallantry in the sinking of the collier Merrimac in an effort to bottle up Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago harbor during the Spanish American war, was honored today by the citizens of Greensboro, the city of his birth. Business was generally suspended, residences and business houses were gay with bunting and the streets were jammed with people wearing Hobson buttons and Hobson badges. Captain Hobson was escorted to the opera house and was welcomed by a throng that taxed the capacity of the foremost citizens of Greensboro and a number of distinguished visitors from other parts of the state. Governor William J. Sanford on behalf of the people of Alabama presented to Captain Hobson resolutions commending his conduct at Santiago, and then introduced Mrs. Mary G. Dickens, chairman of the Hobson testimonial committee, who delivered a brief address accompanying the presentation of a magnificent silver tea and coffee service. Captain Hobson replied in a speech full of gratitude. Following the presentation exercises a public reception was held.

The silver service presented to Captain Hobson consists of five pieces and a waiter. On the waiter is an etching representing the sinking of the collier Merrimac, and below it is the following inscription:

"Presented to Captain Richmond Pearson Hobson by his friends and admirers, in token of his bravery and heroism in the sinking of the collier Merrimac in Santiago harbor, July 3, 1898."

The design of the handles of the waiter is nautical ropes and anchors, and that of the border nautical ropes. The etchings on the service are reproductions of some of the illustrations in the book on "The Sinking of the Merrimac," which was written by Captain Hobson.

BRONCHITIS

may mean a mere cold or a chronic incurable inflammation of wind-pipes.

The quickest relief, for a cold, is also the most effectual balm for the worst condition of wind-pipes and lungs.

It takes the edge off a cold in a night, and relieves it progressively—one forgets it after a little.

An old bronchitis, however, is obstinate. Nothing restores the tissues, when once destroyed; and an old bronchitis has gradually impaired and partly destroyed the lining of those small pipes between throat and lungs.

Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil is the balm; it soothes if it cannot restore.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like. SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

AN HONEST MEDICINE FOR LA GRIPPE.

George W. Waltz, of South Gardiner, Me., says: "I have had the worst cold, cold, chills and grip and have taken lots of trash of no account but profit to the vendor. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the only thing that has done any good whatever. I have used one bottle of it and the chills, cold and grip have all left me. I congratulate the manufacturers of an honest medicine." For sale by all druggists.

THE SENATOR'S WIFE.

The exceedingly handsome wife of a certain senator is going about these days, doing what only the hundredth woman would think of doing. She is telling a story on herself. Not very long ago a woman of fashion gave a very elaborate luncheon, and the senator's wife was present. As she seated herself and drew off her gloves she noticed that beside her sat a stout and elderly person, obviously wealthy, obviously dressed by a provincial modiste after a cut paper pattern, and just as obviously unused to the ways of polite society. She seemed not to know anyone present. Indeed, she presently turned to the senator's wife and confessed it.

"I guess yours is the only face here I know, except Emily's there—indicating the hostess. She's my niece. But I knew you the minute I set eyes on you. I say to myself 'there's Mrs. Senator Blank,' and I know it."

"Perhaps you've seen me somewhere before," said the senator's wife, graciously. "I think you are from my husband's state, are you not?"

"Yes, I am," admitted the stranger, "but I ain't never seen you before."

"My picture in the magazines, then?" said the senator's wife, who has appeared in the public prints frequently of late.

"That's it," answered the other, eagerly. "That's just how I came to know you as soon as I saw you. I've been seeing you in the backs of magazines for months, and, say, I want to ask you, confidential like, if that soap you advertise is really as good as it's represented to be."—Washington Post.

SPRUCE GUM GETTING SCARCE.

A Source of Boston Intellectualty Affected by the Pulm Mills.

Old Town, Me.—The woods of Maine yield more than one half of the five tons of genuine spruce chewing gum consumed in this country every year. Though the city factories turn out large quantities of artificial gum, made from bitumen, pitch and paraffine, and flavored with many beguiling essences, and sell their product so cheaply that the poorest citizen can afford to buy it, the gum he wants to chew, the black spruce tree is getting to be an expensive luxury.

Before the pulp mills came to Maine crystal pure gum was sold by the jobbers for from 40 to 60 cents a pound, most of it was selected from newly chopped trees by the lumbermen. The advent of the pulp mills and the rapid transportation of the cut timber by rail from the stump to the factory brought about a change of method.

THE BERLIN.

Cor. Center and Washington Sts. PHOENIX, ARIZONA

Old growth spruce timber, from which the best quality of gum is obtained, is now so rare that an active lumberman will not secure more than a pound of gum in a winter.

The men who engage in the business have regular routes which they travel year after year. The territory is leased from the land owners. Before coming down from a tree the hunter makes deep horizontal gashes on the sunny side of the trunk, forming wounds from which pitch will exude through the summer, and later harden into gum for the next harvest.

Little gum of last season's ripening has come to market, and the rates charged are from $1.50 to $2 per pound. In April, when the pickers come in with their packs, the price will fall to $1.25, below which no gum will be bought this year.

It is asserted that the habit of gum chewing gives one a clear brain, and that the chewer can think quickly and act wisely in conducting the affairs of life. More than two-thirds of the gum gathered in Maine is sold in Boston, and most of this is retailed to local customers, a fact which may account for the high intellectual condition of Boston.

Persons who visit the backwoods town of Maine hear many stories of enterprising citizens who have gained sudden wealth by cornering the gum supply. In 1886 Mr. Brown, a Boston druggist, went to Bangor to purchase lumber for a group of cottages he was about to put up near cottage city. He sold spruce gum in his store, buying it from jobbers at an average price of $1 a pound. Finding that he could buy it in Bangor for fifty cents a pound, he purchased all he could get, visiting the camps in order to secure as much as possible.

He bought nearly two tons, which he packed in boxes and stored away to await the opening of the river so he could take it to Boston by boat. The ice was late in going out of the Penobscot that year, and before the druggist received his gum the price had gone up to $2 a pound. He made a profit of more than $5,000 on an investment of less than $2,000.

GLOBE SIGHTS.

All that an Atchison citizen amounts to is that he looks like a good man. This is the season when something counterfeit bobs up every day claiming to be the real harbinger of spring.

When a letter written by a citizen appears in a newspaper that is particularly radical, it is signed "Liberty."

An Atchison family, which has applied to charitable societies for the necessities of life, has a telephone in the house.

No woman can get up a Mother's club and claim that she understands the male nature, who refuses to let her son have a dog.

"Can I afford to get married on $10 a week?" a young man asks the Globe. No, but you can find plenty of girls willing to try it with you.

It is an Atchison woman's complaint that none of the prizes that she wins at cards are of such a nature that she can give them to the church as her Lenten offering.

When a man wants to be particularly tantalizing he takes up disreputable stories of kin when there are guests present whom his wife is trying particularly hard to impress.

When a woman talks mean to her dressmaker, her husband has to pay for it. The dressmaker says they always make the bills larger if the women are disagreeable to them.

The first question asked every guest after reaching home from a party, is "What did they have to eat?" Realizing this fact, and fearful that some of her guests may forget something, an Atchison woman is having a bill of fare printed for a coming party, which she will distribute to the guests as a souvenir. It will omit nothing, mentioning even the pink ribbon with which the sandwiches are tied.—Atchison Globe.
